Woodburn Fire District

The Woodburn Fire District (WFD) provides fire suppression, fire prevention services and emergency medical assistance to 35,000 residents located within its 75-square-mile boundary. This boundary includes the City of Woodburn, the City of Gervais and a large area of unincorporated northern Marion County.

The Woodburn Fire District is a combination district that utilizes career firefighters and paid-on-call volunteers. Twelve career firefighters work 24 hours shifts and staff one emergency response apparatus. Approximately thirty paid-on-call volunteers provide coverage for multiple calls and large incidents. The District maintains a proactive fire prevention program which is overseen by the Fire Marshal. The fire district answers an average of 2700 calls a year.

Originally, WFD was two separate entities. Established in 1901, the City of Woodburn Fire Department provided fire suppression and prevention services to residents within the city limits, while the Rural Fire Protection District, established in 1946, provided the same services for residents outside the city limits. In 1984, voters chose to annex the city department into the rural protection district. In 1987, the City of Gervais was added to the District, rounding out its current service area.
